NEW MEN IN CONGRESS

Anyone who thinks a Representative in Congress or a Senator is a saint would have all these delusions dispelled were they to witness the office-grabbing processes that have been going on at the Capital during the past few weeks. There are offices provided for all members, but of course some are better than others. One might suppose that the new members would move into the offices occupied by retiring members—but that would be a poor supposition. The retiring members were all "freshmen" at one time. But in time they "moved up front" and when they were finally elected to stay at home they had acquired the best office rooms on Capitol Hill. Their colleagues in Congress, like those who seek dead men's shoes, "spoke" for the offices that were to become vacant, and when the new members came along early in March they had to take what was left. One might sympathize with them, but time will even up all things, and the men in the dark corners this year will move their belongings in the bright spots after a while.

As the new men in the Senate and in the House get their heels warm at their new residences they become assertive, and when Congress reconvenes next month some of the new Senators will have speeches ready to deliver. In the old days of "watchful waiting" the new members were bluffed into the belief that they must stop, look and listen for at least the first session. But when Beveridge and Cummins and a few others came to Congress they knocked the old precedents into a cocked hat. The country applauded the rebellious spirit that resulted in these men smashing precedents; and ever since it has been quite the proper thing for new members to get into the game just as fast as possible. This is particularly desirable with a change of political administration, since the men who early show special ability, or energy, are apt to become the leaders in the new movements that are ahead.

LAME DUCKS

Retiring presidents are all alike in one particular, and that is that they like to take care of their old political companions who have been left out in the cold by the cruel decree of the voters. The Senate refused to confirm the appointments of President Wilson; but there were positions within the gift of the Executive which didn't require the approval of the Senate. Senator Marcus Smith was tucked away in one of these, and others drew similar prizes. But when, a few days before March 4, President requested the resignation of Obadiah Gardner from the International Joint Commission for the settlement of questions arising on the boundary waters between the United States and Canada, and then offered the position to his Secretary, Mr. Tunulty, there was a lot of comment about Washington. Mr. Tunulty refused, whereupon Secretary of Labor Wilson was given the place. Now there were a lot of "lame ducks" taken care of besides Mr. Wilson; but the manner in which he was given a nice soft place to tumble into was so notorious, that President Harding had it whispered to Mr. Wilson that he should resign from the Commission. Ordinary "lame ducks" pass by unnoticed, but when it comes to finding places for retiring cabinet officers it passes the endurance of mild mannered men, even like Mr. Harding.

A CASE OF "TOO MUCH WASHINGTON"

"Present railroad operating costs are too high," says Senator Cummins, whose name is linked to the present transportation act. So Mr. Cummins of the Each Committee act, wants an investigation by Congress to determine what is to be done about matters, in order that the railroads may survive. "Everyone, including the railroads, appears to be agreed that rates cannot be raised. The railroads consent to this because of the refusal of the public to pay the freight."

Last Sunday morning the sunrise meeting at 6.30, though the weather was unfavorable, was largely attended, pastors and people of the other churches being present and participating in the service.

The meeting was inspiring and the spirit of devotion was uplifting and helpful. It was under the direction of the Young People's Christian Union and led by the President, Chester Howe.

At 10.45 there was the Easter sermon with special music by the choir, which was finely rendered and added to the impressive and beautiful lesson of the day. Following this was the reception of members into the church and the communion. A large audience was present to enjoy the service.

At the Sunday School hour, in place of the regular service an Easter concert was given, a very pretty service.

EASTER SERVICE

The services at the Congregational church were appropriate to the day and of unusual interest. The decorations were most tastefully arranged. A beautiful Bible was upon the desk given by Mrs. Ezra Russell, Miss Isabel Shirley and a friend in memory of Miss Mary Shirley and Miss Nellie Shirley Russell.

The music by the choir added to the inspiration of the services. Four were received into church membership, two by letter and two on confession of faith. The sermon by the pastor was uplifting and comforting to all to whom Easter brings so much of hope and faith. The service closed with the communion.

The concert in the evening by the Sunday School was a fitting close to the services of the day. The little children, in their songs and recitations were very interesting and added much to the beauty and joy of the exercises.

After the pastor's interesting story told the children about the little Armenian girl and boy an offering was taken for the Near East Relief.

The closing part of the program was given by a group of young people, members of the Sabbath school. The title was, "The Triumph of Love." The title was the central figure but as one after another came to her and gave their idea of life, some finding sorrow, education, the gay world, etc., all there was to life still unsatisfactory. Life could give no help until hope came to her and then faith came to add her gift but it remained for love to come and unite the two to life and disrobe death of her sombre robes and reveal her clothed in radiant garments, and declaring herself, the gateway to last lasting life. Then life, faith and love knelt before the cross and all knelt while in the distance came the sweet music, Oh love that will not let me go, Love Divine all Love excelling, closed this beautiful and impressive exercise.

CHAPMAN CONCERT

Odeon Hall, Wednesday Afternoon, Mar. 23, Attracts a Large Audience

The citizens of the town of Bethel have to thank Prof. Chapman for one of the most wonderful concerts ever given in our town, and in his speech at the close of the concert, he expressed his delight and pleasure in seeing such a large enthusiastic audience present to greet him and his artists. It is to be hoped that whenever Prof. Chapman makes his annual trip to Berlin that he will not forget his own townspeople, for we can easily understand by the high class artists that he brings there annually, and the price of tickets for these artists selling from $1.00 to $1.50 that he is giving us a great musical treat when he places the tickets for these same artists at fifty cents here.

We do not consider ourselves competent to criticize, more than to express what appeals to us. Surely we have never heard two men sing duets the way Mr. Lawrie and Mr. Guarneri did here. Such blending of voices, and power, was a revelation, and their solo work as well. Also the wonderful violin playing of Mme. Sokoloff, was a revelation to us.

We quote from the Bangor paper the criticisms they received there of their roughly performance which will give our public here an idea of how they were appreciated by a real musical critic, as we do not carry one on our staff at present, but possibly Prof. Chapman may educate us so that we may be obliged to engage one later.

CHAPMAN CONCERT WAS THE BEST YET

Thursday Night's Programme Was Thoroughly Enjoyed by Large Audience

All the predictions of William R. Chapman and the press that this year's Chapman concert is the best ever were borne out in Bangor City Hall, Thursday evening, when Fernando Guarneri, Italia baritone, of the San Carlo Opera Company, Justin Lawrie tenor, and Mme. Madeleine Sokoloff, violinist, and Mr. Chapman accompanist, scored a triumph that exceeded any of the many fine concerts Mr. Chapman has brought to Bangor during the winter season. It was a magnificent concert from every point of view as a musical treat, and it was made doubly notable by the whole-hearted reception the audience which was the largest ever to attend a Chapman concert, gave the artists. Mr. Chapman never disappoints. Thursday night's audience expected much for he had promised that Guarneri would create a sensation, that Lawrie would exceed even his triumph at the last Festival, and that Mme. Sokoloff would enthrall as few violinists can, and the promise was fulfilled. Aside from the great achievement of Mr. Chapman in establishing the Festival for Bangor, he is the city's benefactor in making it possible for the many lovers of music to hear such artists as he brings to Bangor each winter, and as with each Festival, each Chapman concert seems to be better than the last. Thursday night's concert surely set the standard high for next season's achievement.

Fernando Guarneri is not only a singer, but he is an artist. He has a wonderful voice of great power and beauty, used as only a great artist can use it, and his singing created a sensation. The audience applauded and applauded and Guarneri graciously displayed his appreciation by responding time and again. He sings with an ease and perfection that is exceedingly satisfying and he has personality.

Justin Lawrie is a Lewiston boy, who has made a name for himself among the elite of the east. The success of his appearance at the last Festival was added to in a large measure Thursday night, and he held his audience enthralled throughout all his numbers. His voice is clear, resonant, true, and of unusual sweetness, and not without a power and fullness that when called upon, is displayed with artistic temperament. Mr. Lawrie was decidedly effective in his braves of songs, in which he excels, but the hit of the evening was his singing of "Down in Maine," which brought forth a cyclonic applause. The words written by Mrs. William R. Chapman, and the music by Prof. W. R. Chapman. Mr. Lawrie was obliged to repeat this number, and the composer and singer were brought before the audience many times, and his duets with Guarneri gave opportunity for skill and technique.

Mme. Sokoloff, violinist, has been classed with Heifetz. She demonstrated Thursday night that she is entitled to be classed with the leading violinists of the country, for she has mastery of technique, plays with a bold and sweeping stroke, interprets with skill, and brings from her instrument the multivarious tones of richness and beauty and power, skillfully marking the gradations of tone color. Mme. Sokoloff appeared on the programme three times, and every number was a rare treat, the encores being as vigorously applauded as the programmed numbers. Mr. Chapman displayed good judgment in placing on the programme three duet numbers by Mr. Guarneri and Mr. Lawrie.

GRANGE NEWS

Fuller and Miss Ethel Russell. Charades under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Lamb were enjoyed and a vocal duet by Edna Tirrell and Bernice Hines.

La Boheme opened the programme, and from the moment of the first harmonious notes of this famous Puccini composition the audience settled into enrapt attentiveness. The final duet, Romeo and Juliet in Quasi ora, Forza del Destino, was unusually pleasing, and brought to a climax a programme of climaxes.

An account of Thursday night's concert would not be complete without mentioning the magnificent work of Mr. Chapman, who was at the piano, and was no small factor in making the concert a success, for while he is more often thought of as a conductor and director of orchestra and chorus, he is a composer and accompanist of unusual ability and his playing made a perfect background for his artists.—Bangor Daily Commercial, March 11th, 1921.

CANTON

Charles Carroll Ellis, an esteemed resident of Canton, passed away Friday night after a ten days' illness of pneumonia at the age of 79 years. Mr. Ellis was born in Canton, a son of Gideon and Harriet Austin Ellis, who had five sons, John, Hiram, Gideon, Isaac and Charles C., who was the last to pass on. At Canton, Oct. 19, 1864, he married Miss Abbie S. Breit, daughter of Simeon Brett, who survives, together with two sons and two daughters, Simeon B., George Albert, W. Maude and Julia, the wife of Edwin K. Hollis, all of Canton. Two sons have passed away, Fred, who died in young manhood and Carroll C., who met a tragic death several years ago. Mr. Ellis had been a life-long citizen of Canton and was universally respected. For many years he owned a stage route from Dixfield to North Jay and from Dixfield to Strickland's Ferry. He was also in the livery stable business for a short time. For several years past he has carried on a trucking business and his familiar figure on the street will be sadly missed by the townspeople. He also had charge of the Pine Woods Cemetery. He has served as one of the board of selectmen in past years and was an honored member of Anasagunticook Lodge, No. 32, I. O. O. F. Besides his wife and children he is survived by nine grandchildren, Lyman, Ansel and Herschell Ellis, Marguerite Hollis and Mrs. Katherine York of Canton, Errol Ellis of Waltham, Mass., Edith and Fred Ellis of Dixfield, and Eugene Ellis of Gilbertville, also by eight great-grandchildren.

DOCTORS SAY CONSTIPATION POISONS SYSTEM

The majority of people suffer from constipation which poisons the whole system and causes coated tongues, bad headaches, foul breath; in children often results in high fever and actual illness.

These conditions may be quickly relieved by Dr. True's Elixir—the Family Laxative that has worked wonders for men, women and children since 1851.

"I have great faith in your Dr. True's Elixir. I give it to my boy, it is doing him much good and I would not be without a bottle for anything," Mrs. Joseph Boyce (Tracey Station, N. B.).

You know the symptoms of chronic constipation—sour stomach, belching, bad breath, heavy dull eyes, constant headaches, and general out-of-sorts, feeling. Dr. True's Elixir will help you.—Adv.

STATE OF MAINE ADVOCATES A FOREST EXPERIMENT STATION

The Maine Legislature has passed a joint resolution favoring the establishment and maintenance by the United States Government of a Forest Experiment Station on the White Mountain National Forest in the State of New Hampshire. It has been transmitted to the Senate and the House of Representatives in Congress, and to the members from Maine, with the request that they use all reasonable efforts to obtain its enactment.

This resolution refers to the identical bills (S. 3822 and H. R. 12188) which were introduced in Congress a year ago by Senator Keyes and Representative Wason, respectively, of New Hampshire. They carry an appropriation of $50,000 for a northeastern forest experiment station.

The lumber cut in New England dropped from 3,170 million feet in 1907 to 1,400 million feet in 1918. Over 5 1/2 million acres of land suitable for growing forest are nonproductive. The annual drain upon the saw timber is nearly 3 1/2 the annual growth. These facts show the need for a forest experiment station to develop the best methods of reforestation and to increase the productivity of the northeastern forests and forest lands.

The action of the State Legislature, representing as it does the general sentiment of the people of the State, is significant. It indicates the awakening realization of the public in the north-east to the value of research as a means of perpetuating their forests, one of their most important natural resources upon their largest industries and the welfare of thousands of families depend.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William Gorman celebrated their golden wedding day, Mar. 15, 1921, very quietly at their home. The two oldest children and youngest were present: Grover C. Gorman of Gosham, N. H., Sadie J. Howe of Berlin, N. H., and G. W. Gorman, who lives at home. Presents were given them by their children, and pictures taken. All of their children are living but one daughter, Nora, who passed away a few years ago.

The following poem was sent from New York by a friend of the family.

THE GOLDEN WEDDING

March 15, 1921

I'm coming to you from that beautiful land,
Lying beyond the hills of youth.
I'm coming to you; and gently take your hand,
To lead you back across the years.

I breathe a kiss upon your gray hair,
You see not me, as you gaze into my eyes—
You see visions of youth and love so fair,
Dream days, joy days, rose tinted with Life's sunrise.

Come let us forget that locks may be white,
That footsteps falter and eyes grow dim—
Dove shall guide us to that Land so bright,
I am Memory—let me linger at your side.

Oh it is fair that rose tinted Land,
Those days of long ago
Love found you there, and hand in hand
You began Life's journey there.

Joyously you climbed the heights of dreams,
Along the wild rose trail of happiness
lingered,
Upon her fair curls the sun glow gleamed.
In his eyes ambition smiles.

One by one the milestones passed,—
Slowly but surely the years slip by;
Bit by bit your fortune's amassed—
Silver winged joys, golden deeds—and
A little child!

Here we come to the lonely home,
Where in the shadows sorrow lurks,
Bravely you smile with remembered pain,
And gently your clasp her hand.

How steep and hard would have been that climb
Out of the valley of sorrow,
Did not love with a wisdom sublime,
Fearlessly lead the way.

The pathways of life by his feet have been worn,
He, too, journeyed as you have done,
Here and there you found a thorn
That pricked his feet on the way to Calvary.

Life's joyous morning you've left behind,
Busy noontime has passed on too,
But sweeter by far, as you shall find,
Is the peace and calm of twilight.

The shadow of evening soon will be falling,
Dim grow the high lands of dreams,
Hark! Sweet in the tender voice calling,
Comforting the staff of his promise now.

Together you stand in golden sunsets glow,
Together you've reached the golden milestone,
Together you've loved, lived and suffered—and so,
God bless and protect you the rest of the way.

"Memory."

SLEEPING SICKNESS

IN MAINE

Ten deaths from sleeping sickness or lethargic encephalitis have already been recorded in Maine with the State Department of Health while the number of cases which have occurred but have not resulted in death is impossible to estimate as all physicians have not yet come to understand that the disease is reportable.

Dr. L. D. Bristol, commissioner of health in Maine offers the following brief explanation of the nature and history of the mysterious disease. He says:

"Sleeping sickness, as it is popularly known, is not to be confused with the tropical disease of that same name. Its medical name is lethargic encephalitis and it has also become popularly spoken of as influenza of the brain. Whether this is a proper term to apply to the disease or not, it is thought by some authorities to be an aftermath of the great influenza epidemic while others consider it an entirely distinct disease.

"Its past history shows that it was known in Europe as far back as 1718 and in more recent times during the two years of 1889-90 it appeared in Italy, France and Hungary and a few cases in this country.

"Its present history dates back to the winter of 1917 in Vienna; next it appeared in England and France in 1918; and since that date it has been prevalent in this country.

"Its symptoms include the drowsiness or sleepiness from which the popular name of the disease was conceived; inflammation or pain in the eyes, with double vision or twisting of the eyes in the head, fever; headache; infection of the nose and throat; mental depression; slow or rapid speech. The patient lies in bed usually drowsing with expressionless face.

"The disease is thought to be mildly contagious and has been made reportable in this state so that statistics as it occurs here will be increasingly available."

MATERIAL FOR ROAD MAKING

Careful Study of Amount and Character of Traffic is First Important Essential.

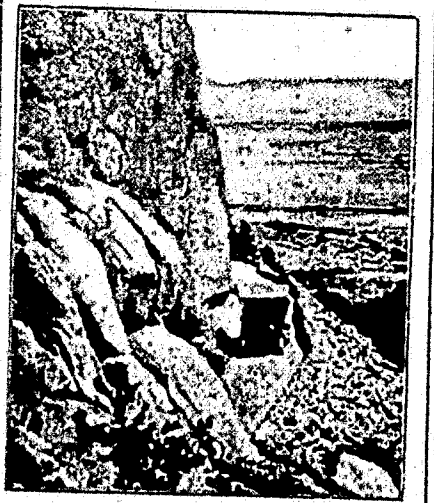

Professor House of the Colorado Agricultural college is one of the best-known engineers in Colorado. He has been head of the civil engineer department at that college for several years and has always been in close contact with the affairs of the state. In speaking about roads, Professor House says:

"A great deal of agitation is being carried on at the present time, concerning the construction of concrete roads for Colorado. That some of our roads should be paved in this way, there is no question, but I think we should carefully guard against overdoing the matter. In order to be justifiable, road improvements must return in economic and social benefits an amount at least equal to the interest, depreciation and maintenance, over and above those of the old road.

"It is exactly the same as in ordinary business. The amount that should be invested in road improvement is that sum which will give the largest annual returns in benefits to the people of the community.

"It may be real economy to spend $20,000 per mile for one road and only $2,000 per mile for another, if the former carries more than ten times the service and costs just ten times as much.

"Before we run wild upon the subject of concrete surfacing for roads of Colorado the proper classification of the roads, and a careful study of the amount and character of the traffic over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. The state is then prepared to determine upon the proper highway system that will be the most economical, and that will meet the traffic requirements of each road."

GOOD HIGHWAYS IN JAMAICA

Island in British West Indies is Awakening to a Realization of Improved Roads.

The island of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, rich in natural resources and active in trade, is awakening to a realization of the importance of good roads. The advent of the automobile has had much to do in the development of an agitation which now promises valuable results. The system of modern highways which it is proposed to build will mean the speedy development of parts of the island not more or less neglected because of their practical inaccessibility. Completion of a radial system of good roads would undoubtedly be followed by a general adoption of the motortruck for conveying the products to the sea. The increased speed and efficiency thus acquired would tend to promote larger production, and thereby increase the wealth of this already industrious island.

GOOD ROADS BOOST PROFITS

Where Farmer Can Haul but One Bale of Cotton on Poor Road, Man on Good Roads Hauls Four.

The matter of opportunity in marketing is worthy of consideration. For the sake of example, suppose that two farmers living in separate counties, but at equal distances from the cotton market, learn by telephone that cotton has advanced in price $1 a bale. The man living on a bad road can immediately haul one bale of cotton to market, while the other can haul four bales because he lives on a good road. The rise in price means a profit of $4 to the one man and only $1 to his neighbor.

Change Road Location.
If the location of a used road is bad it should be changed if possible. In relocating roads avoid railroad crossings at grades.

First Need of Farmer.
The first need of the farmer is good roads leading from the farms to market centers.

Concrete Base Urged.
Practically every highway engineer today agrees that all roads should have a concrete base.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Rather elaborate hair ornaments for evening wear are approved.

One general rule is that the hair must be arranged rather softly.

Spring styles for children are now being brought out by manufacturers.

Many soft wool fabrics are used in the development of pajama sets and other practical household garments.

Many semiprecious stones are used in the dashing head dressings which are to be worn with evening frocks this winter.

For very little girls bonnets are made of such soft materials that when not on the head they are practically shapeless.

The hair may be worn high on the head, low or medium—the whole problem is to find the most becoming mode, and then adopt it.

A touch of white at the neck of either a blouse or street frock is almost always better than a dark color worn next to the face.

It is always possible to make the neck a trifle more becoming to the very thin woman by filling in the deep V with a little vesicle of lace or embroidery.

WEST PERU AND DICKVALE

Miss Verna Philbrick, who worked for Mrs. H. E. Ruffus one week, is visiting friends in Rumford.

The Dickvale school began Mar. 28. Richmond and Ryan Ruffus visited relatives and friends here the first of the week. They start for their home in Parkdale, N. B., April 1st.

Herbert Bowker is in very poor health.

Extra Staples has his winter lumbering done and moved back to West Peru last week.

RUMFORD POINT

Mrs. H. S. Hayes went to New York, Monday.

F. W. Ladd lost a nice heifer last week.

The new boat is completed and in the river, some three weeks earlier than last year.

George and Hazel Merrill of Andover are visiting in town.

The Prodigal Village

By Irving Bacheller

Copyright, 1921, Irving Bacheller

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—In the village of Binghamville, a poor widow, Mrs. Emmet, had a son, a young man, who was known as the "Prodigal." He was a wild, reckless, and dissipated man, who had spent all his money and was now a pauper. He had been in the village for some time, and had become a great nuisance to the people. He had been in the village for some time, and had become a great nuisance to the people.

CHAPTER II.—The village becomes money mad, reflecting the great world in its state of unrest. The village becomes money mad, reflecting the great world in its state of unrest. The village becomes money mad, reflecting the great world in its state of unrest.

CHAPTER III.—Mainly owing to Judge Crocker, the village awakes to its short-sightedness in having considered money the essential, and neglecting the real things of life and true democracy. Some of the leading men also receive a lesson in the increasing waywardness of members of their families.

"Well, you can't say I did it," he answered. "The modern girl is a rather delicate piece of machinery. I think she'll be all right in a week or two. Come, it's time we went to the theater if we're going."

Nothing more was said of the matter. Next morning immediately after breakfast, "Aunt Harriet" set out with Phyllis in the big limousine for Doctor Gibbs' sanitarium.

Phyllis found the remedy she needed in the ceaseless round of outdoor frolic. Her spirit washed in the glowing air found refreshment in the sleep that follows weariness and good digestion. Her health improved so visibly that her stay was far prolonged. It was the first week of May when Mrs. Bing drove up to get her. The girl was in perfect condition, it would seem. No rustic maid, in all the mountain valleys, had lighter feet or clearer eyes or a more honest, ruddy tan in her face, due to the touch of the clean wind. She had grown as lithe and strong as a young panther.

They were going back to Binghamville next day. Martha and Susan had been getting the house ready. Mrs. Bing had been preparing what she fondly hoped would be "a lovely surprise" for Phyllis. Roger Dwyne was coming up to spend a week with the Bings—a week of opportunity for the young people, with saddle horses and a new steam launch and a Peterborough canoe and all pleasant accessories. Then, on the twentieth, which was the birthday of Phyllis, there was to be a dinner and a house party and possibly an announcement and a pretty waggling of tongues. Indeed, J. Patterson had already bought the wedding gift, a necklace of pearls, and paid a hundred thousand dollars for it and put it away in his safe. The necklace had pleased him. He had seen many jewels, but nothing so satisfying—nothing that so well expressed his affection for his daughter. He might never see its like again. So he bought it against the happy day which he hoped was near. He had shown it to his wife and charged her to make no mention of it until "the time was ripe," in his way of speaking.

Mrs. Bing had promised on her word and honor to respect the confidence of her husband, with all righteous intention, but on the very day of their arrival in Binghamville, Sophronia (Mrs. Pendleton) Ames called. Sophronia was the oldest and dearest friend that Mamma Bing had in the village. The latter enjoyed her life in New York, but she felt always a thrill at coming back to her big garden and the green trees and the ample spaces of Binghamville, and to the ready, sympathetic confidence of Sophronia Ames. She told Sophronia of brilliant scenes in the changing spectacle of metropolitan life, of the wonderful young man and the untimely affliction of Phyllis, now happily past. Then, in a whisper, while Sophronia held up her right hand as a pledge of secrecy, she told of the necklace of which the lucky girl had no knowledge. Now, Mrs. Ames was one of the best of women. People were wont to speak of her, and rightly, as "the salt of the earth." She would do anything possible for a friend. But Mamma Bing had asked too much. Moreover, always it had been understood between them that these half-playful oaths were not to be taken too seriously. Of course, "the fish had to be fed," as Judge Crocker had once put it. By "the fish," he meant that curious under-life of the village—the voracious, silent, merciless, cold-blooded thing which fed on the sins and follies of men and women and which rarely came to the surface to bother anyone.

"The fish are very wise," Judge Crocker used to say. "They know the truth about every one and its well that they do. After all, they perform an important office. There's many a man and woman who think they're fooling the fish, but they're only fooled themselves."

And within a day or two, the secrets of the Bing family were swimming up and down the stream of the under-life of Binghamville.

Mr. Bing had found a situation in the plant which was new to him. The men were discontented. Their wages were "sky high," to quote a phrase of one of the foremen. Still, they were not satisfied. Reports of the fabulous earnings of the mill had spread among them. They had begun to think that they were not getting a fair division of the proceeds of their labor. At a meeting of the help a radical speaker had declared that one of the Bing women wore a noose of pearls on her neck worth half a million dollars. The men wanted more pay and less work. A committee of their leaders had called at Mr. Bing's office with a demand soon after his arrival. Mr. Bing had said "no" with a bang of his fist on the table. A workers' meeting was to be held a week later to act upon the report of the committee.

Meanwhile, another cause of worry had come or rather returned to him. Again, Phyllis had begun to show symptoms of the old trouble. Mrs. Bing, arriving at dusk from a market trip to Hazelmead with Sophronia Ames, had found Phyllis lying asleep among the cushions on the great couch in the latter's bedroom. She entered the room softly and leaned over the girl and looked into her face, now turned toward the open window and lighted by the fading glow in the western sky and relaxed by sleep. It was a sad face! There were lines and shadows in it which the anxious mother had not seen before—and had she been crying? Very softly, the woman sat down at the girl's side. Darkness fell, black, menacing shadows filled the corners of the room. The spirit of the girl betrayed its trouble in a sorrowful groan as she slept. Roger Dwyne was coming next day. There was every reason why Phyllis should be happy. Silently, Mrs. Bing left the room. She met Martha in the hall. "I shall want no dinner and Mr. Bing is dining in Hazelmead," she whispered. "Miss Phyllis is asleep. Don't disturb her."

Then she sat down in the darkness of her own bedroom alone.

CHAPTER SIX.

In Which Hiram Blankinsop Has a Number of Adventures.

The Shepherd of the Birds had caught the plague of influenza in March and nearly lost his life with it. Judge Crocker and Mr. and Mrs. Singleton and their daughter and Father O'Neill and Mrs. Ames and Hiram Blankinsop had taken turns in the nursing of the boy. He had come out of it with impaired vitality.

The rubber tree used to speak to him in those days of his depression and say, "It will be summer soon."

"Oh, dear! But the days pass so slowly," Bob would answer with a sigh.

Then the round nickel clock would say cheerfully, "I hurry them along as fast as ever I can."

"Seems as if old Time was losing the use of his legs," said the Shepherd. "I wouldn't wonder if some one had run over him with an automobile."

"Everybody is trying to kill Time these days," ticked the clock with a merry chuckle.

Bob looked at the clock and laughed. "You've got some sense," he declared. "Nonsense!" the clock answered.

"You can talk pretty well," said the boy.

"I can run, too. If I couldn't, nobody would look at me."

"The more I look at you the more I think of Pauline. It's a long time since she went away," said the Shepherd. "We must all pray for her."

"Not I!" said the little pine bureau. "Do you see that long scratch on my side? She did it with a batpin when I belonged to her mother, and she used to keep her dolls in my lower drawer."

Mr. Boggus assumed a look of great alertness, as if he spied the enemy. "What's the use of worrying?" he quoted.

A CATECHISM OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

Contributed by the United Americans of the State of Maine, Casco Bank Building, Portland, Maine

(Published by arrangement with the National Security League)

The catechism of the Constitution, in pamphlet form, will be sent postpaid, on receipt of three cents in stamps.

Q. What is the important provision of the Thirtieth Amendment?

A. It abolishes slavery in the United States.

Q. How does the Constitution compel the States to deal justly with their citizens?

A. The Fourteenth Amendment forbids the States making or enforcing any laws abridging the privileges or immunities of citizens, or depriving any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law or denying to any person the equal protection of laws.

Q. How is the freedom of the ballot preserved?

A. In the Fifteenth Amendment it is provided that the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Q. When and why were the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments adopted?

A. They were adopted just after the end of the civil war and were designed to protect the negroes who had been granted freedom and citizenship. Their broad provisions, however, apply to the people of every race who become citizens of this republic.

Q. Are individual incomes now taxed?

A. Yes, because the Sixteenth Amendment, proclaimed February 25, 1913, authorizes taxes to be levied and collected upon incomes.

Q. Why was this amendment adopted?

A. Because the original Constitution declared that "no capitation or other direct tax shall be laid," unless in proportion to the population. When an income tax law enacted by Congress was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States, the people amended the Constitution.

Q. Are United States senators now elected by direct popular vote?

A. As previously stated, the Seventeenth Amendment, ratified May 31, 1913, provides for the election of United States senators by direct popular vote.

Has He a Future?

When Professor Evvard, the distinguished authority on swine breeding and feeding, asks "Has the Hog a Future?" he is concerned not with the hog's immortality, but with farm profits. That is why you will want to read his illuminating discussion of this important question in next week's issue of

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

The drop in pork has hit the farmer hard. It is time to pause a minute and take stock, in order to know exactly where he stands.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is the national weekly of profitable farming—its purpose is to show the farmer how to succeed. And it's not just a fair-weather friend of the man on the soil; it will tackle his problems with him when those problems are hardest to solve. Professor Evvard's timely article is just typical of an ahead-of-the-minute service that covers every farm interest. A full year of this service—with wholesome entertainment for the whole family thrown in—costs but a single dollar. If you send me $1.00 today, the first of 52 weekly copies will reach you in next Thursday's mail.

RAVEL RIBBON FOR TRIMMING

Whole Brims Made of Soft Cascades—New Material That Closely Resembles Monkey Fur.

Traveling the ribbon is the most popular method of achieving trimming. Whole brims made of soft cascades of raveling. There is a new ribbon that may be bought raveled and which closely resembles monkey fur. This is, of course, among the novelties.

To make an entire hat of ribbon the wires or crossbars are chosen. Their trimming may be a swirling web of the ribbon with fringed ends.

Very interesting little ornaments are made of ribbon. The ribbon is raveled and rolled into fluffy pompons that look almost like fur. It may be treated in this way to form a roll around the crown or the edge of the brim.

Any number of little leather hats are seen in the latest shades of wood brown. The brightest shades of suede hats are worn with neutral colored costumes. Nothing could be lovelier than a brilliant orange or coral made smart with a suit of soft gray.

Worn With Velvet Skirts.
Moccasins of silver or gold cloth are usually worn with velvet skirts.

or pay the fares. The nub of the problem in reducing operating costs of the railroads seems to enter upon the question of reducing wages of railway employees. And something over two million men are hollering like Comanche Indians that "it can't be done." Meanwhile appeals of all kinds are being made to Washington, ranging from attempts to secure the return of the roads to government management to efforts to obtain the reductions through the Federal agencies charged with wage adjustments. The fight is a bitter one, and the public appears not disturbed in the least.

It seems clear that Congress is glad to have the railroad matter off their hands, and one hears plenty of talk that the question ought to work out its own adjustment as has been the case with the economic affairs of many other industries of the country. The railroad owners and the Brotherhoods rush to Washington on the slightest excuse, apparently unmindful of the fact that experience has shown that most of the evils of the railroad situation matters are due to "too much Washington."

The other public service institutions appear to have made good progress, and their best results have been obtained outside the so-called field of "public regulation."

OFF FOR THE PHILIPPINES

General Leonard Wood and former Governor General of the Philippines W. Cameron Forbes are off for the Philippines to make an investigation to determine whether the Islanders are ready for self-government, and to report to President Harding. Several hundred Congressmen have made the trip to the Philippines during recent years, and they have returned to debate the question. National political platforms have decided that the Philippines should have self-government, but Congress has been slow to act.

Whatever the report of the two Commissioners may be, it is not likely to have a very decided effect upon the opinions of the people as a whole. But officially it is likely to mean a great deal, since it is expected that the President will accept the report as a basis for his position upon the independence of the Philippines. In the recent boundary dispute in which Panama was involved the President refused to budge from the findings of Chief Justice White, although a lot of people besides the aged Justice represented that they knew a great deal about the matter. It is foreseen that the Administration is likely to take a position similar in support of the Wood-Forbes Commission. Of course no one knows what these two men will report, but it is known that Governor Forbes was formerly opposed to the independence of the Islands. Meanwhile the Philippine Commission in Washington is leaving no stone unturned to advance the cause for self-government for their people.

KEEPING TO BEATEN PATHS
As the Harding administration moves on its course it is evident that the policies of the former administration are being continued in a great many instances, with no apparent prejudice against them because of their democratic parentage. The treaty of Versailles hangs fire, but it is evident there will be no declaration of a separate peace with Germany, or the withdrawal of troops, until there is some radical change in the existing situation. The building program of the Navy that was in effect before Mr. Harding came into office, will be carried out, and the policy of the Federal Reserve Bank will remain unchanged. Mexico, Japan, South and Central America, all present the same problems as in the past, and the indications are the old policies will be followed wherever possible, and the United States will keep to beaten paths.

DEBTS NOT LIKELY TO BE CANCELLED

It is asserted in Washington that there exists a "propaganda" which is endeavoring to convince Americans that they should saddle upon themselves the $10,000,000,000 which was loaned to European governments. It may be positively stated that the Administration is opposed to any such method of disposing of the European debt; and it is pointed out, evidently with a degree of authority that is to be accepted as final, that the American taxation program of the coming four years contemplates that the United States will pay its war debts, and that other governments war debts, and that other governments that owe us will do the same.

CONGRESS HEARS
DRAMATIC PLEA
FROM FILIPINO

Philippine Resident Commissioner Isuro Gabaldon

Washington. — "Must the heart of America beat only for the freedom of Ireland, of Poland and of the Czechoslovaks, and not for the independence of the Philippine Islands?"

This was the question Resident Commissioner Isuro Gabaldon addressed directly to the members of the House of Representatives in a speech which was given very close attention and was frequently applauded.

"At one time," said Commissioner Gabaldon, "Congress had before it no less than thirty resolutions expressing sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people, if not actually urging England to grant independence to Ireland. At that time, also the Philippines were knocking at your door. Out of the womb of war, many European republics were born, and America has rejoiced to uphold the same. And yet the claim of the Philippines is still unheeded. Must there be exceptions, then, in international justice?"

"My plea, gentlemen of the American Congress, is that you ignore no longer the repeated requests of a deserving people for an independence that rightfully belongs to them. The granting of independence now affords the United States a golden opportunity to give to the world an unanswerable proof of its sincerity, its consistency and its altruism. It will be the greatest example of square dealing in the history of the ages."

"Do not think we are not appreciative of all you have done for us. We are. America has truly treated the Filipino people as no other nation has ever treated an alien race in all history. The high points of the American policy in the Philippines have been consistently inspired by altruism. We know that you were actuated in your labors by the desire to contribute to our own welfare."

"And we love you perhaps most of all for your solemn promise to grant us that which we hold dearer than life itself—our freedom. Independence is our national ideal. It is our all absorbing aim. It grows stronger every hour. For the spirit of nationalism never dies. Much less can it be subdued. We believe that we can never hope to be a sturdy nation if we are to rely forever on the magnanimity of the United States."

"America's task in the Philippine Islands is finished. What you have assumed as your sacred obligation in that part of the world has been fulfilled. A people with a medieval system of institutions has been transformed into a conscious nation, imbued with all that is modern in the activities of nations. And if you give us independence our gratitude to you will increase a thousand fold; it will last forever if you keep faith with us."

"There is but one issue in the Philippine question, and that is: Is there today a stable government on the Islands? In the Jones law you promised independence upon the establishment of such a stable government. Your own Governor-General has officially reported that there is a stable government in existence today, and we also have submitted plenty of evidence to substantiate its existence. Therefore, we hope and expect America will now carry out its pledge."

FINE HAT MAKING A PHILIPPINE ART

This Philippine is making a Philippine hat, which is becoming quite popular with both men and women in the United States, and is usually a source of great pride to the wearer.

We do not blame the Filipino people for wanting their complete freedom. It is the natural aspiration of mankind.

SALVATION ARMY ADVISORY BOARD

Formation of a Salvation Army advisory board for this district was effected Friday, March 25, at a meeting of representative citizens called by Thomas Henry for H. N. Head. The Board is similar to others now being formed in New England and its completion means that every facility of the Salvation Army for social relief is at the disposal of the people of this community.

The officers elected at the meeting are as follows:

President—H. N. Head
1st Vice-Pres.—L. W. Ramsell
2nd Vice-Pres.—E. C. Smith
Secretary—Ethel Allen
Treasurer—Grace Farwell

The other members of the Board are: Dr. F. B. Tuell, F. E. Hanson, F. B. Merrill, N. R. Springer, D. M. Forbes, L. W. Ramsell, Herman Mason, E. C. Park, G. D. Morrill, Mrs. Burris, F. A. Brown.

Educational Com.—Mrs. Ruth Grover, Mr. Russell, Howard Tyler, Herman Mason.

Service Com.—H. C. Rowe, G. D. Morrill, Mrs. A. E. Horrick, Dr. I. H. Wright, Chester Wheeler, Ethel Allen.

Finance Com.—E. C. Smith, A. L. Grover, G. D. Morrill, H. N. Upton, H. H. Hastings, Miss A. O. Hamlin.

The Salvation Army has operated for more than forty years in the larger cities of the United States. The work it has accomplished has won for it such commendation that communities all over the country have asked the Army to establish connections so that the good work might be made available to an even larger section of the country than at present. With these requests in mind the ranking officials of the Salvation Army worked out the plan of establishing a community advisory board wherever possible. Not only does each advisory board have the benefit of the forty years experience possessed by the Salvation Army in solving the problem of social conditions but in so far as the situation permits also has at its disposal the homes and institutions that are now operated by the Salvation Army throughout the whole country.

While the Salvation Army with its trained workers specializes in all kinds of social and charitable work, it has sought to make its activities plain by grouping the sixteen principal ones. They are:

Emergency Department—A relief branch available for immediate service in the event of any disaster.

Missing Friends Bureau—For the location of persons in any part of the civilized world, whose whereabouts are unknown.

Juvenile Industrial and Agricultural Schools—Where physically and morally sound citizens are developed from delinquent boys and girls, and where orphans are reared and educated.

Boys' Friend Bureau—To care for the lad without funds or friends who would be thrown, otherwise upon his own resources in a strange community.

Young Women's Boarding Homes—In which girls of small income may obtain good food and clean, attractive quarters at prices within their reach.

Rescue and Maternity Homes—To shield and care for the girl whose innocence has been betrayed, give her a fresh start on the right road, and keep her and her baby together.

Industrial Homes—Men who have become derelicts are here restored to the wage earning class.

Working Men's Hotels—Where a poor man may find a clean bed at a nominal price amid surroundings that make for his moral and spiritual regeneration.

Free Employment Bureau—To obtain jobs for the unemployed.

Prison Work—Caring for the families of prisoners and rehabilitating the released prisoners.

Slum Settlements—Where practical assistance is extended to those who drift into the lowest levels of city life.

Fresh Air Camps—Conducted to give summer outings to mothers and children of the poor of crowded city sections.

Christmas Dinners—Furnished to poor families and needy individuals.

Anti-Suicide Bureau—Which has met with marked success in the arrest of this mania.

Work Among Service Men—Continuance of the well known war record of the Salvation Army among those men still in uniform.

JUST GOT OVER A COLD?

Look out for kidney troubles and backache. Colds overtax the kidneys and often leave them weak. For weak kidneys—well, read what a Bethel man says:

F. M. Wood, 4 Park St., says: "My kidneys began to annoy me some years ago after I had strained my back lifting. After this my back ached pretty badly and I was in bad shape for a long time. When I took cold, my kidneys got congested and at times they acted irregularly. After Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended, I began to use them and they took hold of trouble quickly. I soon had relief from the backache and the action of my kidneys was corrected. Now, I use Doan's Kidney Pills as needed and am always benefited. I always keep the remedy on hand, getting my supply from Bossman's Drug Store." (Statement given June 8, 1916.)

On September 9, 1920, Mr. Wood said: "During the past four years, Doan's Kidney Pills have done fine work whenever I have used them for any sign of kidney weakness. I think just as highly of Doan's today as when I first endorsed them."

But He's on His Way.

Uncle Tom arrived at the station with the goat he was to ship north, but the freight agent was having difficulty in billing him.

"What's this goat's destination, uncle?" he asked.

"Sub?"

"I say, what's his destination? Where's he going?"

Uncle Tom searched carefully for the tag. A bit of frayed cord was all that remained.

"Dat ornerly goat!" he exploded wrathfully. "You know, sub, dat ignorant goat done completely eat up his destination."—American Legion Weekly.
